

N. Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students (Use Bibliographic Form)

Rudolf Witt, Society and Technological Change (3rd Edition). New York: St. Martin's Press, 1995.

Don Waters, Technology & Society: The Challenge of the Future. New York: Basic Books Publishing Co., 1991.

Textbooks will be updated periodically.

O. Course Objectives; P. Course Content;

Complete Form with Entries Under the Following Headings:
Q. Method of Instruction; R. Course Evaluation

Q. COURSE OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of the course the student will be able to:

- i. Critically assess the major persons and theories employed to describe and analyze technology.
- ii. Apply the sociological perspectives discussed in the course to specific issues and problems having to do with technology.
- iii. Apply the sociological perspectives discussed in the course to specific issues and problems having to do with technology.

Subject and Course Number

Subject and Course Number

P. COURSE CONTENT Cont'd.

- 12. Government and the Control of Technology
Government Actions and the Shaping of Technology
Guiding Technological Development
Democratic Control of Technology

Future Challenges

Q. METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The course will involve the use of a number of instructional methods to achieve its objectives.